

PRACTICE QUIZZES

SAMPLE TO POPULATION PRACTICE QUIZ

Johnson's argument in Chapters Six and Eight rests on an implicit inference from a sample to a population. Use the techniques in Chapter Six to assess the evidence that the Baldus study provides for the correlation between race and the death penalty in the United States as a whole.

CORRELATION TO CAUSE PRACTICE QUIZ

Now use the techniques in Chapter Eight to assess Johnson's evidence of a correlation between race and death sentences to the causal hypothesis that race is causally relevant to the death penalty.

These two "quizzes" are for practice only. They are not to be submitted, nor will they be graded.
